Map master

Use the map and clues to pick a wine region.

| Region / where to look | Grapes and styles that could fit |
|---|---|
| ChampagneNorth-east, around Reims | Chardonnay, Pinot Noir and Meunier. Bubbles, apple/citrus and sometimes bread or pastry. Other French regions also make sparkling wine. |
| Burgundy / BourgogneEast, Dijon to Mâcon | White: often Chardonnay, apple and citrus, sometimes oak. Red: often Pinot Noir, red berries and fresh acidity. Both colours can come from here. |
| BordeauxSouth-west, around Bordeaux | Reds often blend Cabernet and Merlot. Sauternes makes sweet whites, often Sémillon, with honey and dried-fruit notes. Dry whites are made here too. |
| LoireWest and centre, along the river | Sauvignon Blanc can smell of citrus and green herbs. Chenin can give apple or quince, in dry or sweet wines. Sweetness alone does not prove Bordeaux. |
| AlsaceEastern border, near Strasbourg | Often aromatic whites: Riesling with citrus; Gewürztraminer with rose or lychee. Wines can be dry or sweet. |
| RhôneSouth-east, Lyon towards Avignon | Syrah can give dark berries and black pepper; Grenache, ripe red fruit and spice. White wines can be full and floral. |

Write a square and a region. Column letter first, then row number. More than one glass can come from the same region. These are examples of French styles; not every region above has a wine in the tasting.

Map: JancisRobinson.com, World Atlas of Wine, 8th ed. © Octopus Publishing Group. Supplied by Séamus; grid added. Burgundy counts as a region-level answer.

Reference: Vinmonopolet

Aroma master

Match the glass to one description.

Apple / citrus / herbs

A fresh-fruit description may fit. Check body and oak to separate two similar whites.

Cherry / strawberry / raspberry

Look among the red-berry descriptions. Then compare herbs, oak and drying tannin.

Toast / bread / pastry

May point to lees ageing or oak. With bubbles, lees-aged sparkling wine is worth considering.

Honey / apricot / dried fruit

Try the richer descriptions. Taste again: does it actually taste sweet, or only smell fruity?

Read the Norwegian clues: eple = apple · morell / kirsebær = cherry · bringebær = raspberry · jordbær = strawberry · urt = herb · fat = oak · bakverk = pastry · skogbunn = forest floor · frisk = fresh acidity · fyldig = full-bodied.

Six anonymous descriptions

1. Kompleks og litt utviklet aroma av aprikos, sitrus og tørket frukt, litt kantarell, urt og blomst. Fyldig, sval og søt med feit tekstur, preg av sitrus, aprikos og honning, urt, kantarell og fat.
2. Aroma av røde bær, litt grønne urter og krydder, hint av anis og blomster. Ung og saftig med nokså myk munnfølelse, preg av jordbær, kirsebær, litt anis og urt.
3. Litt utviklet aroma av eple, sitrus, gul steinfrukt og bakverk, litt toast, karri, sopp og nøtt. Kremet tekstur og brus, friskt preg av sitrus, eple, litt nøtt, kantarell, bakverk og mineraler.
4. Preg av sitrus og eple, noe fat og urter. Frisk, mineralsk, god lengde.
5. Sval og mineralsk aroma preget av gule epler, sitrus og urter, hint av krydder og blomst. Ungdommelig med fruktig preg av modne epler, sitrus, litt urter, nøtt og mineraler. God fylde.
6. Ungt preg av moden morell, bringebær og jordbær, litt fat, kamfer, anis, roser, urter og skogbunn. Lang, ung og saftig, preg av modne bringebær, jordbær, morell, litt fat, grønn urt, anis og kamfer.

Stuck between two? Compare the differences. Do both mention citrus, but only one mentions oak? Does one sound softer? Ask the team to compare the texture. Missing one aroma does not rule a description out.

One description per wine. Polet's original Norwegian.

Reference: Vinmonopolet

Price master

Match the glass to a bottle price.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| 1 kr 439.9075 cl bottle | 2 kr 249.9037.5 cl bottle | 3 kr 342.0075 cl bottle |
| 4 kr 209.9075 cl bottle | 5 kr 239.0075 cl bottle | 6 kr 449.9075 cl bottle |

Clues for these six bottles

The half-bottle

The sweet, honeyed wine comes in a 37.5 cl half-bottle. Match the price of that bottle, not a price per litre.

The two dry whites

The two still, dry whites are at opposite ends of the price list: one is the cheapest bottle and one is the most expensive.

The two reds

One red costs less than kr 250. The other costs more than kr 400.

The oak clue

In both the dry-white pair and the red pair, the pricier wine has fat (oak) in Polet’s tasting note. Ask the aroma master which glass fits those descriptions.

Identify the styles, compare the tasting notes, then use each price once. These comparisons apply to the bottles we bought, not to wine prices in general.

Prices and bottle sizes from the receipt and Polet. Oak clues refer to Polet’s descriptions.

Reference: Vinmonopolet